Harbury & Bishops Itchington Patient Participation Group (PPG)

We need You!

A while ago I wrote an article introducing the re-emergence of the Harbury & Bishops Itchington Patient Participation Group (PPG). I explained at the time that since April 2016 it has been a contractual requirement for all GP practices in the UK to have a PPG.

Our PPG is made up of a group of volunteers, the practice manager and a GP. The aim being to discuss the services provided within our local community, and to look at where and how services can be improved, or introduced for the benefit of patients and the practice.

Our current group consists of only a small number of volunteers, and so we are looking for new patients who can bring fresh ideas and impetus to the PPG.

In order for our PPG to make some real progress we would like the committee to be more representative of our whole patient community, and would love to have some younger patients join us too.

We meet approximately 4 times a year for one hour at the Harbury surgery.

If the above sparks your interest then we would love to hear from you.
